

Professor Stefan Timmermans, UCLA, presents:

"The Unclaimed: A Social Barometer of Kinship"

Description: I shed light on "the silent epidemic" of people going unclaimed: when relatives are unable or unwilling to bury their loved ones. I explain the recent rise in unclaimed and what it tells us about the state of American families.

Stefan Timmermans is professor of sociology at UCLA. His research interests include medical sociology, science studies, and qualitative data analysis.
