Course Description. Against the backdrop of Cartesian reservations about the possibility of a "science" of the social world, this course will examine four of the major justifications that have been offered historically for constructing such a science, as well as the conceptions of the nature of the social world that have accompanied such justifications. The justifications considered are those of Auguste Comte, Emile Durkheim, Karl Marx, and Max Weber.

Requirements. All participants are expected to stay abreast of the assigned readings and to take active part, during class meetings, in the analysis and discussion of these readings. Participants are also required to write three preliminary commentaries and to take a final examination.

- Preliminary Commentaries. The first class period on Durkheim is scheduled for Thursday, October 2; the first period on Marx for Tuesday, October 21; and the first period on Weber for Tuesday, November 11. In advance of the class meeting on each of these dates, participants are expected to have completed the reading assignment associated with each thinker. In light of each reading assignment, participants are to submit, at the beginning of class on each of the three dates, a short (2-3 page, double-spaced) commentary that speaks to the following question: To what extent and in what ways does Durkheim’s [or Marx’s, or Weber’s] argument on behalf of social science differ from the kind of argument a sociologist writing in 2007 might make on behalf of social science?

- Final Exam. The final will be a 48-hour take-home exam. The exam will be handed out at 3:30 on Tuesday, December 2 and due on Thursday, December 4 at 3:30. (There will be no regular class meeting on these two dates.) The final exam will be cumulative, covering the material for the entire quarter. The exam will present two questions and ask participants to write on both of them, with the limit for both answers combined not to exceed 15 (double-spaced) pages.

Grading: The three preliminary commentaries will constitute 15% of the course grade (5% per commentary), participation 25%, and the final exam 60%.
Readings: The reading assignments will be found in one of the following four books, on sale the Norris Center Bookstore, or in a course packet (hereafter abbreviated: CP) available at Quartet Copies (825 Clark Street).

Max Weber. Economy and Society. (ES)

Schedule of Topics and Assignments

September 23  Introduction

September 25  The Cartesian Challenge

  • Assignment
    Selections from Rules for the Direction of the Mind; Discourse on Method; and Principles of Philosophy. (CP)

September 30  Auguste Comte (1798-1857)

  • Assignment
    Selections from Cours de Philosophie Positive. (CP)

October 2-7  Emile Durkheim (1858-1917)

  • Assignments (for October 2)
    i) Selection from Montesquieu and Rousseau. (CP)
    ii) Selection from The Division of Labor in Society. (CP)
    iii) RSM, pp. 31-150

October 9-16  The Idealist Challenge

  • Assignment (for October 9)
    HTC, pp. 6-110 (even numbered pages)
October 21- November 6

Karl Marx (1818-1883)

- Assignment (for October 21)
  MSW, pp. 46-120, 146-208, 212-233, 245-262, 380-480, 530-544, 563-64

November 11-25

Max Weber (1864-1920)

- Assignments (for November 11)
  i) Selection from Methodology of the Social Sciences (CP)
  ii) ES, pp. 3-28